VOLUME NO. 1 — CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIF., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1933 — NUMBER 46

Nativity To Be Presented By Sunset Pupils Thursday

Students Will Present Nativity Play For Fifth Consecutive Year; Under Musical Direction of Miss Currey

For the past seventy years, the story of the nativity has been given at Christmas time, and for the fifth consecutive year, Carmel will hear the play put on by the students of Sunset school.

Under the musical direction of Miss Madeline Currey, the play will be presented on the evening of December 21, next Thursday evening, and with so many things to think of at this time, it will be well to mark the date on your calendar.

The work of Sunset pupils in the past has been held in such high regard that spectators have come from as far as San Francisco. Following is an outline of the program:

"The Holy Night"

The Wayafarers who are ready to give their gold or grain or flowers only when they themselves no longer have need of them cannot find their way to the Christ Child, nor can they understand the various things the heavenly angels tell of. A boy wanders by with a lamb, as dear to him as a brother. He meets an angel and offers to give this little lamb to the Christ Child of whom the angels sing. Not until this great gift is offered is the veil lifted from men's eyes, Then only are their hearts opened to the beauty and mystery of the first Christmas eve.

Mary, Joyce Whitcomb; Joseph, Houston Hannon.

Wise Men—Hugh Smith, Edgar Leslie, Joseph McEldowney.

Shepherds—Jimmy Welch, Bobby Hall, George Crossman, Max Hagemeyer, Barclay Spence, John Plank.

Local Man Writes On Park Projects

Clair Foster Gives Views For Commitee Of Forty

In these days of dearth we Carmel people who love our costly hobbies find it hard to lay our hands on the money to support them. But cheer up, my fellow hobbyists, love will find a way.

My radio station is a hobby. It is used for handling radiograms across the Pacific for people who have urgent need of communication and have no money to pay for it. It has benefitted thousands in times of illness, in times of misfortune and in times of rejoicing. It is very much an agency for the aid of the unemployed. Nevertheless it is a hobby so far as I am concerned. The money spent on it is spent for my own enjoyment The countless hours of the night spent in it are spent for my own amusement. It has never before occurred to me that other people should pay even a small part of the cost of my hobby. But I have just learned from the Arts and Crafts Club of Carmel that I have been overlooking a, bet. I like the Arts and Crafts, love my hobby, and love has found a way.

As a spectator at the meeting of our Council of the City of Carmel on Saturday, December 9, I learned that if I will give a certain three of our five concilmen an interest in my radio station I might possibly look forward to forcing the taxpayers to stand the expense of my hobby in perpetuity. I don't know just how long perpetuity is but I imagine that it is quite a stretch.

And I learned it all at the slight expense of listening to a few hours of irrelevant talk and perverted reasoning on the part of three councilmen and a lawyer hunting for a legal way to condone a questionable act. I heard hours of, "Would this cover it legally?" and, "Would that cover it legally?" But never once did one of those three councilmen ask, "Would this be honest?" The three councilmen in question had been advised of the illegality of their previous action in voting to force their debts and the cost of their hobby onto the taxpayers. But love will find a way; other legal minds in the especial hobby of these councilmen had advised them that if they went through the gesture of "resigning" from the Arts and Crafts Club their subsequent official acts would be legal at any rate. And so they again voted to saddle the debts and expenses of their hobby on the taxpayers over the staunch protests of the two councilmen who have been defending vigorously and logically the rights and

Children's Concert Friday Evening At Sunset School

Do not miss the Children's Concert this coming Frinday evenin, at eight o'clock in the Sunset School auditorium when the Carmel Music Society presents the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra, Michel Penha conductor, and the Ruth Austin Dancers in a Christmas Ballet to Hansel and Gretel music played by the orchestra.

The ballet is not the only novelty. Eleven-year-old Max Hagemeyer, who has been studying cello with Mr. Penha since last June, will play a Cantabile by Golterman for cello and string orchestra. What it means to our young boys and girls, as well as older students, to have the orchestra to play in and to play as soloist with, can only be estimated perhaps by those who have themselves all their lives been denied such an opportunity.

While the stage is being set for the ballet, there will be a demonstration of three of the lesser known instruments of the orchestra carried on by Mr. Penha on the forestage. Following the custom initiated by Leopold Stokowski with the Philadelphia Symphony, which has now almost become a tradition in children's concerts, Mr. Penha will describe and have illustrated the different instruments of the orchestra. In Friday's concert, he will call forth Abraham Weiss, viola, Madeline Curry, oboe, and Mrs. Jack O'Hanlon, trumpet, and let these instrument sspeak for themselves their own peculiar voices, their highest and their lowest, and their everyday way of sounding.

The Carmel Music Society has priced the tickets twenty-five cents for children and fifty cents for adults in order that every seat in the house may be taken, and it is hoped that all the subscribers to the Society will buy at least one extra ticket for some child who could not otherwise come.

Following is the full program:

Old Mission Guild Plans Dance

At their meeting at Serra Crespi hall Monday night, the ladies of the Old Mission Guild laid plans for another dance and a card party, the dance to be given Saturday evening, December 30, and the card party January 9.

The dancing on this occasion will be for the young and old alike and Arthur Bartholomew's orchestra will furnish the music. With this music and Serra Crespi hall, the dance is an assured success.

A committee has been appointed to look after all details and they will plan things in keeping with the holiday syirit.

The guild also discussed plans for the children's party to be given by the Dominican Sisters Sunday afternoon, at which they will have charge of the "goodies."

MUSIC SOCIETY WILL PRESENT ROLAND HAYES

On account of difficulties in obtaining music, the "Children's Crusade," which was scheduled as the fourth number of the winter series of the Carmel Music Society, will give place to Roland Hayes, negro tenor, who will appear here January 9.

EASTERN STAR PLANS CHRISTMAS PARTIES

A party for the grown-ups next Monday night and a party Friday night for the children of the members has been arranged by the Monterey chapter of the Eastern Star,

There are about thirty-five children in the Star families and the committees are busy preparing for a grand time.

MRS. CHAMBERLAIN WITH MERLE'S TREASURE CHEST

Mrs. Margaret Chamberlain, pioneer of Carmel, is now with Merle's Treasure Chest at their beautiful shop on Ocean avenue.

Mrs. Chamberlain began her work this week by familiarizing herself with the many beautiful and rare pieces of jewelry, and other exceptional things for which the Chest is famous.

Mrs. Chamberlain finds particular pleasure in the old amber, the Cinese jades, the black opals and the sapphires. She finds it difficult, however, to decide definitely out of such a large selection of lovely things just which is her favorite.

And when you drop in to see these exquisite things, you'll be just as undecided, yourself.

Carmel Art Association Opens New Gallery

Striking Exhibition of Artists In Association Will Run Until Jaunary 10th; Everyone Invited

The Carmel Art Association's opening reception at their new gallery last Sunday afternoon was a success far beyond the hopes of the most enthusiastic promoters of the new institution. More than five hundred people called at the newly acquired gallery on Fourth and Dolores and were without exception delighted with the project and astounded at the really wonderful showing the committee had been able to make in such a short time after purchasing the property. Tea was served to the guests by Miss Culbertson and Mrs. Chappell Judson.

When purchased the place was in a bad state of repair and before being suitable for the opening had to be cleaned and repaired, the grounds around the place worked over and a nearly endless number of details worked out. And to make the job more difficult the Association has had very little funds to do the work with. Due credit for financial assistance must be given to at least one member, Ferdinand Bergdorff, who donated five of his famous etchings.

The interior of the building and the furnishings is a rich, mellow brown with that satiny platina that comes from the use of a lot of elbow grease and a polishing rag and the place from one end to the other is spotlessly clean. The main gallery has a large skylight and the committee intends to install gutter lights for the smaller rooms and for illumination at night.

The initial exhibition of pictures of local artists now on display, and which will continue until January 10th includes something like seventy oils and water colors, six wood engravings and a striking bronze by Jo Mora. The pictures are all small, but what they lack in size they more than make up for in quality. The pictures shown are all worthy of detailed mention but since so many of the artists showing are so well known it must suffice for the time being to mention only the names.

Francis McComas, Paul Dougherty, William Ritschel, Armin Hansen, John O'Shea, Charlton Fortune, Burton Boundey.

George Kotch, M. de Neale Morgan, Chapel Judson, Helen Cheney Brown, Alice Comins, Nora Nichols Grabill, Catherine Sideneck, Edward Fristrom, Elizabeth Strong, Ferdinand Bergdorff, Helen Clay Brown, J. M. Culbertson, Stanley Wood.

James Fitzgerald, William Watts, Jo Mora (bronz) Gene Francis, Paul Whitman, Edith McGuire, Myron Oliver, Mary Trevett, George Sideneck, C. E. Morgan, E. M. Heath, August Gay, Isabel Nicholson, F. Maynard Curtis.

One wing of the gallery has been set aside as a residence for the curator, Mrs. Nellie Montague and any mention of the new institution's initial success would be wholly incomplete without due credit being given Mr. and Mrs. Montague, who have that warm, intimate personality that gives the most casual visitor the feeling of complete welcome. And to make this particular part of the new venture complete, not only Mrs. Montague, the curator, bu Mr. Montague, have for years been collectors and dealers in antiques and objects of art and have the natural love of art coupled with a practical working knowledge of marketing that makes that particularly suited for the appointment.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS STILL UNDER QUESTION

After many deliberations and council meetings, the questions of a public park and playground and a new city hall are still up in the air.

Although at a meeting last Saturday, the council by a vote of three to two voted to accept the deed from the Arts and Crafts association for the grounds known as the Forest Theater, Mayor Catlin, who does not favor the project, insisted on hearing first from the title guaranty company. It was thoug that a report would be ready by Wednesday night and consequently a meeting was called for that date. It is not likely now, however, that a report will be made before the last of the week, and Saturday, 11 a.m. has been set for another meeting of the council. Should the project go through the city will become owner of the 16 lots and with a gift of about $9,000 from the government will make the spot a park and playground.

Attorney Campbell reported at Wednesday night's meeting that he had laid all the data concerning a new city hall before the PWA engineer in San Francisco and that the official thought it would go through. The plan calls for a loan of $37,500 for the building of the city hall, 30 per cent of which will be given outright by the government and the other 70 per cent to be voted by the people and the bonds taken by the government at four per cent. It is estimated that this will not increase expenses since there is enough rent paid at present to retire the bonds. The project will be passed on in Los Angeles Friday or Saturday and Carmel should hear by next Tuesday.

A communication was read from R. Markham in which he asked a permanent improvement on Eleventh street in front of his property. He claimed to have made the request until he was "blue in the face," and threatened to sue the city if the condition be not remedied.

A letter was read from M. J. Murphy, Inc., asking whether he should take out a wood yard license in addition to his lumber yard license. The matter was referred to Attorney Campbell.

Mayor Catlin stated that he was still doubtful that three members of the council had the right to vote on the park, on account of their previous connection with this enterprise. "Let each councilman decide for himself," the mayor said, "whether he has any personal interest in the sale of these grounds to the city."

Extensive improvements are being made on the Sunset school under the government's employment program.

TERESINA PLEASES CARMEL WITH SPANISH DANCES

Teresina, Spanish dancer, thrilled a capacity house at the Sunset school auditorium last Saturday night with her program made up entirely of real Spanish dances. Teresina has brought her art to its highest form. She gave her audience something, at times, almost fairylike. The dancer appeared in eight different costumes, each quite distinctive and exceedingly lovely.

She possessed a buoyant, youthful lightness that was mervelous and her spinning form and flying feet never for once broke out of a charming rythm that brought out her full individualty and interpretation of the various dances from Andalusia, Catalonia and the peasants of old Spain.

Although Teresina made up practicaaly all the program Carlos Montoya, guitarist extraordinary, responded to numerous encores in his three appearances. Javier Alfonso, pianist furnished a very suitable accompaniment to Teresina's dances and delighted the audience with his piano solos.

Mrs. L. F. Hueling of San Luis Obispo is in Carmel staying at the home of her brother, Mr. Van Auken while he is in the clinic. She reports Mr. Van Auken as doing well.

MANZANITA CLUB TO HELP REDEEM CARMEL DOLLARS

The Manzanita club under the generalship of Dr. Gray is staging a smoker, big party and a general what-not at the club house next Saturday evening for the purpose of redeeming all or as many of the Carmel Dollars as they can. They have a number of clever stunts planned all of which it is hoped will separate guests from a few dimes to be spent for stamps in filling out Carmel Dollars and thereby redeeming them without much expense to anyone and at the same time having a lot of fun.

BALLAMS LEAVE CARMEL AFTER FIVE YEARS HERE

Carmel people will have a chance to purchase many of the beautiful things from Ballam's at auction next Tuesday and Wednesday, according to an advertisement apppearing on page four of this issue.

Mr. Ballam will return to his position as federal appraiser and will make this sale to reduce the stock. The Ballams were residents of Carmel for the past five and one-half years and their shop has stood well to the top of Carmel's attractive business places.

It is understood that the business will still be conducted from the same location under new ownership.

Carmel Sun Will Not Accept Whiskey Advertising

Carmel Sun this week refused to accept an advertisement for whiskey and desires to announce in this connection that at no future time, as long as the present editors own the paper, will there appear any liquor advertising in Carmel Sun. We did run advertisements for 3.2 beer, but as any one knows, beer of this strength is almost a soft drink and quite a different potion from hard liquor.

The fact that we don't carry hard liquor advertising does not necessarily mean that we have any great scruples against decent, orderly, sane drinking. But it does mean that we have no desire to urge or induce people to use liquor and any advertisement extolling the merits of alcohol is for the sole and only purpose of increasing its consumption and use and in that we will have no part directly or indirectly.

The sale of liquor today will soon resolve itself into the same general situation as existed before we had prohibition. In these days the liquor handler, dealer and purveyors were in a distinct, practically ostracised class. The saloon keeper could not, no matter how good a citizen he was, take his place in society with respectable citizens.

The saloon keeper was never the mayor of a town; he was never a county official; he was never a member of a school board. And this stigma was not the saloon keeper's alone to endure. Its shame was extended to the members of his family. His wife was seldom among the guest at social functions and his children were in many cases sent to distant schools to escape the tragedy of being known as "a saloonkeeper's child."

This situation will soon be here again unfortunate as it may be. However decent the man selling liquor is, he and his family will be people apart from the rest. It is all because of the nasty fact that a man handling liquor is interested in sales and profits. More consumption—and consumption by any individual may at any time reach the point where the individual is a menace to himself and society.

Once again, directly or indirectly we will have no part in the sale of liquor.

WOULD-BE LIQUOR PURVEYORS RUN AGAINST SNAG, LICENSE

Will Carmel be kept free from the sale of liquors as was the intention when deeds were made out to purchasers by J. V. Devendorf and his company, or will the repeal of the eighteenth amendment see the breaking down of Carmel's standard?

This question takes its place along with that of the new city hall, the Forest Theatre park and the new postoffice in Carmel this week.

At present those who are in favor of no change in Carmel are feeling highly elated since word has come from the State Board of Equalization that it is not the policy of that body to issue license for liquor to be sold on land where the sale of liquor is forbidden by terms of the deed.

The question often asked, but yet unanswered is, "What will those who have purchased their liquor and advertised its sale, do with their stock under the new conditions?"

B. Schulte.

Charles Laughton ... Merle Oberon, Wendy Barrie, Elsa Lanchester ... Binnie Barnes ... The Private Life of Henry VIII

Henry VIII at Carmel Theatre, Dec. 20, 21, 22

by J. A. Kuntsman

Did Henry VIII really love any of his wives?

Was his heart ever stirred by that immortal passion which poets have hymned ever since man began to record his emotions on something less ponderous than stone?

Was his mad pursuit of the opposite sex based on a psychological complex, or was it inspired by the one haunting fear that he would die without an heir to succeed him on the British throne?

The London film production, "The Private Life of Henry VIII," a United Artists release starring Charles Laughton and showing at the Carmel Theatre, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, sheds a fascinating pictorial sidelight of this interesting question.

Historians and psychologists have both advanced theories to substantiate their claims that fear was the impulsing motive of this "love-mad" monarch. Both apparently forget, in their enthusiasm, that a selfish passion, such as the picture, could not by the wildest stretch of the imagination merit the name of the one emotion which leads the individual ego to forget itself in another.

And yet there are those who digging below the surface of appearance—delving deeper into the well-springs of action—believe they have proof that there were in Henry's promptings of a warm and genuine affection for at least two of the women who graced his life—and these two he had beheaded!

There are those who aver the Henry's nature is amply proved in his writings, many of which are still available through libraries and collections, and in his musical compositions, both secular and sacred, which are still played in musical circles.

There are those ever that the one great love in Henry's life was the ill-fated Anne Boleyn, pointing to the volume of seventeen love letters from His Tudor Majesty to his lady which is still extant and which is noting if not proof in black and white. Actual quotations from some of these tender missives such as "having been above a whole year struck with the dart of love for you and not yet sure whether I shall find place in your heart and affection" would most assuredly convey the existence of a yearningly tender sentiment.

Of the six fair charmers who shared his life, history records but two who literally "lost their heads"—Anne Boleyn and Katheryn Howard—the only two who held the citadel of his heart against all comers until their own weaknesses proved their undoing.

Decorations for the tree are in the hands of the merchants' committee.

Saturday evening, December 16 the Monterey High School dramatic department wil present a three act comedy "Once There Was a Prince." It is the society's first effort this year and rehearsals have received favorable comment

Sale of Monte Regio land under foreclosure by the City of Monterey for delinquent taxes has been postponed to December 26 due to illness of attorney for the trustee to bankruptcy. Monterey hopes to realize more than $25,000 from the sale of various tracts of land delinquent in taxes.

Henry Dommer who plead guilty to charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace is serving a ninety day sentence in the county jail. He was ordered to leave town but upon being found drunk again in a few hours and in an altercation over an overcoat, was given the heavy sentence because he ignored the Judge's order to leave.

City councilman Todd of Pacific Grove has refused to be a party to changing the name of a short and obscure street in that city. The change was requested to avoid confusion between Pine street and Pine avenue. He gave the reason for refusing to support the move the possibility of everyone wanting to change their street name if the practice was started.

Pacific Grove has launched a campaign for early construction of an $85,000 post office building. Construction of the building was authorized by congress several months ago and a concerted effort is being made to get actual work under way.

Announcement by the War Department that improvements would be made on the Gigling military reservation in the near future was made recently by Presidio officials at Monterey. An appropriation of $30,000 has been asked for making 12 miles of road on the rifle range near Monterey. Improvements are also planned for the parade ground at Monterey and these improvements give strength to the opinion that there is no possibility of the Presidio at Monterey being abandoned as has been more or less rumored.

About 350 men are now estimated to be at work on various CWA projects on the peninsula with the prospects of a great many more soon being employed. Payrolls for the first week's work amounted to nearly four thousand dolars and there is less unemployment now on the peninsula than for two years.

Monterey will have a big community Christmas tree at the intersections of Alvarado and Franklin if present plans materialize. Merchants in general are endorsing the plans and it is hoped that something different can be arranged this year by united action of all business and civic leaders.

Public improvements in Pacific Grove to cost a total of more than $20,000 are under way under the CWA program in that city. The Federal government furnished $18,000 for labor and material while the city puts up about $2,800. It is estimated about 100 men will be employed on the projects for the next two months.

OTHER TAXES DELINQUENT PEOPLE HURRY PAYMENTS

Tax collectors were surprisd the first of last week when heavy receipts began coming in and raised the amount collected Monday and Tuesday to $2,000. The mystery of the sudden activity was cleared when one person sent a telegram saying the taxes were in the mail and therefore not delinquent.

Thus Carmel profited from the fact that Monterey and Pacific Grove taxes became delinquent last week if unpaid.

Out of the $50,000 on Carmel's books, $16,000 has already been paid in, with some time yet to go. The officials are highly hopeful of an excellent return this year.

interests of the people—the two men alone out of the lot have a clear conception of their duties as trustee of other people's money.

A week ago I had never heard of the proposal of the Arts and Crafts group to have the taxpayers take over the Forest Theatre property and assume its obligations forevermore. One of the chief proponents of the plan gave me as his opening argument that the Club was making the city a gift of $25,000 worth of real estate because the city had to own the property in order to get a piece of the government's money that is going to civil works projects, and that the motive back of the whole device was the provision of more work for Carmel's unemployed. Knowing something of the weird financial expedients of this group in the past, their casual regard for debts and their capacity for kicking up rows and feuds within their own ranks, I had my doubts of this munificent gift, so I investigated for myself. Well, the Arts and Crafts people aren't making any gift of $25,000 or even 25 cents, to the city. All they could possibly bestow is what they have, and all they have is more obligations and incumbrances than they have property. Their "gift" consists in giving the taxpayers the consuming priviledge of liquidating the debts of a private group and subsidizing the future activities of their hobby until the end of time.

Much has been made by the Arts and Crafts group of the plea that the proposed plan would accord with the aims of President Roosevelt—that the President wants us to qualify for this Civil Works money. On the contrary, the proposed transfer of property and obligations is a glaring example of just what President Roosevelt is fighting with all his strength—the exploitation of the people by special interests.

If you wish to see who would be the chief beneficiaries of the "gift" just look over the roster of the Arts and Crafts group, then add the three councilmen in question, then add the creditors who have been unable to collect their money from this group. If the list of property owners who you wish to see who chiefly would bear the burden look over are unable to pay their taxes. I am told that this year it will cost the City $1,200 to print the list in the Pine Cone, Whose editor and publisher, by the way, are pushing the plan to load the problems of the private Arts and Crafts group onto a public already badly overburdened by the activities of this and other similar groups.

There is one bright side to this whole sordid proposal, two councilmen who have advanced too far ethically to permit themselves to join with the arty and crafty three. In John Catlin, our oldest member of the council, and Bob Norton, our youngest, we common people may place our trust with the conviction that it will be meticulously regarded. To me the unwavering stand for the rights of the taxpayers against the conniving of this special interest that comes bearing "gifts" is inspiring.

2,000 Seek Work on U S. Relief Jobs in County

With the number of applicants for work already registered nearing 2,000 in the county, it was becoming evident that available jobs would by no means assure work for everyone.

In Monterey Miss Effa Spencer, Community Chest secretary in charge of registration for the peninsula area, said there were 906 registered early this week.

It was again emphasized that workers who have been on relief rolls will be placed first and that other vacancies will be filled with registered applicants, taken in the order of registration. So many of the later applicants must be disappointed.

In this connection it was stressed that no one who has any kind of work at present should quit his job in the hope of finding work under the civil works program.

TWO CARS MEET AT STREET INTERSECTION

Kelley Clark was driving down San Carlos and Dominado O. Fernandez was driving down Ocean Friday night. The two cars met at the intersection with little damage to the cars and injury to no one.

The case was heard before Judge Wood who lectured Fernandez and let him go. Fernandez stated that a car was backing out into the street near Stanford's, that he blew his horn and they halted to wait for him to pass, and that the car obscured his vision of the cross street

NATURALIZED CITIZENS

In a citizenship test conducted this week in Salinas, Karolina and Stoyen Shkutoff, natives of Greece; Otto Klinger and August Passadori, Switzerland and Vive Harbor and Theodore Florin of Sweden, all now Carmelites, became citizens of the United States. Eight others were admitted at the same time.

SALVATION ARMY ASKS CLOTHES FOR NEEDY

MISS JULIA B. PLATT PLANS HUNTING TRIP

A hunting trip that she hopes will lead to the releasing of the land about Pacific Grove from the game preserve has been planned by Miss Julia B. Platt, former mayor of Pacific Grove, 76-year-old crusader for the rights of the public.

Miss Platt seeks arrest for hunting within the game refuge and is sure that her suit will result in the law being declared unconstitutional. She will notify the game warden when she starts on her hunting expedition.

Miss Platt claims that the state did not secure the written requests of the owners whose property is involved.

It seems that the making of this district into a refuge is laid to the doors of Carmel people.

MURPHY IS CLEARED IN ZONING TRIAL

M. J. Murphy, accused of operating a wood yard in violation to Carmel's zoning law, was acquitted when his trial was heard by jury last Thursday.

It was brought out that the wood yard in question was operating before the zoning law went into effect.

A total of seventeen projects under the CWA have already been accepted and men are being put to work. It is hoped that at least 400 men will be at work in a few days. The number is now over 300.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN ENTRANCE TO GALLERY

The door was moved from the side entrance to the Denny-Watrous gallery this week, and the opening placed directly at the front with double doors set back several feet and show cases at each side of the entry way.

This is a distinct improvement, doing away with the crowded doorway when lectures are being given at the gallery, as well as adding to the appearance of both gallery and street.

The building belongs to the De Yoe estate.
